GET WELL WISHES FOR THE PRESIDENT

re sent to Ernest L. Wilkinson Tuesday, listed in "satisfactory" condition at the Utah Hospital. President Wilkinson's secretary said morning and injured his back. He was reported that the fall was "nothing serious."

Forum To Highlight 'Fantasia'

Fine Arts Dept. and the J. Culture Office will host the university's 43rd Christmas Assembly, "Fantasia," at the Forum assembly room, numbers related to theme, "Have Yourself a Merry Little Christmas," will be the Women's Chorus, a harp ensemble and the BYU Jazz Ensemble with Christmas arrangements by Stan Kenton.

The 35 members of the "Our Gang" group from Roosevelt School in Vernal, and nine, will sing under the direction of Mary Peterson, a BYU graduate. The Polish Obersek, performed for the first year on campus, will be danced by the International Folk Dancers, who will also do the "69 Bee Merry" written by Director Mary Jensen.

The "69 Bee Merry," a western dance that will be performed at this year's June Conference, will be accompanied by the Folk Dancers' own western band.

"With this we want to wish everybody a merry, American Christmas. We find the title very appropriate for this time of year," explained Mrs. Jensen.

The morning's special guest, in full costume, will be featured in the musical number, "Santa Baby," done by the Culture Office.

Shift In Semester Schedule Planned

By Mike Twitty
Asst. News Editor

Wouldn't it be nice to be all through with finals? Would facing the holidays be more pleasant with no research papers to work on and no tests to study for?

That possibility looms large today following an announcement by Pres. Wilkinson that the Board of Trustees has authorized the administration to work on a calendar which would provide for the completion of the fall semester before the Christmas holidays.

The entire 1969-70 school year will probably be shifted approximately three weeks earlier.

No definite calendar has been drawn up, but Pres. Wilkinson said the first semester would begin around the first of September and end before Christmas. This apparently would advance the start of the spring semester to early in January.

Strong faculty opposition would be the only cause for delaying the new schedule. A special faculty meeting will be held Thursday at 4:15 p.m. in the Joseph Smith Auditorium to discuss the change and for suggestions to procedures.

ASBYU President Grant Richards told the DAILY UNIVERSE, "I feel that students are in favor of this change. The year that it will be implemented depends on the faculty."

Dean Cameron suggests that interested students should exert what influence they can on the faculty to support the change for the 1969-70 school year.

A poll conducted last year on the campus showed that 83 percent were in favor of the semester ending before Christmas. Eleven per cent were opposed and six percent were undecided.

Boths will be set up today in the Reception Area of the Wilkinson Center for students to sign a petition showing their support for the move.

The state universities and colleges in Utah have avoided the interruption of classes because they operate on the quarter system with 12 weeks or less of instruction.

Since BYU converted to the semester system in 1960, students have had to concentrate on tests and papers during and immediately following the Christmas vacation.

With two regular semesters, there are 16 weeks of instruction plus registration and examination periods. The proposed change wouldn't shorten the fall semester but merely include most of the month of September rather than the month of January.

Details are not yet available as to the date of completion of the spring semester.

Execs Find Even Radicals Are Sincere

By Larry Wright
Managing Editor

Strikingly different and surprisingly sincere—these words seem to describe most accurately the students at the Bay Area campuses visited last weekend by members of the BYU community.

Two busloads of BYU students and their advisers traveled Wednesday and Thursday to San Francisco to tour colleges and to attend the Cable Car basketball tournament. The ASBYU Executive Council, Cougar Pep Band, Cougarettes, DAILY UNIVERSE representatives and other students involved with student government made the trip.

Thursday afternoon the Executive Council and two DAILY UNIVERSE reporters drove to Berkeley to visit the campus of the University of California. The Executive Council met with the student leaders of Cal, including Student Body President Charles Palmer. UNIVERSE representatives met, less formally, with DAILY CALIFORNIA staff members and talked with students at random.

The students at Berkeley present a much different appearance than do BYU students. Beards are common, perhaps even prevalent. Dresses are shorter, hair is longer. Dogs and other pets seem to be favorites on campus.

The students seem to be very involved in what they consider important—discussion, study, religion. Some students there said that the "hang-out" people—those most extreme in dress and manner—are not students but "hangars-on" at the school. Same with publications like the BERKELEY BART—it is not considered a student underground paper, but rather an outside effort. Some Berkeley people dismissed it as being either trivial or pornographic.

The next day, Friday, the same group of BYU students traveled from San Francisco to San Jose State College—about an hour's

DRS. MELVIN P. MABEY AND STANLEY TAYLOR

Directors for the International Relations and European Studies program.

Mabey, Taylor New Directors

Directors for the International Relations program and the newly-established European Studies program at BYU, announced by President Ernest L. Wilkinson.

Names to direct the European Studies program is Dr. Melvin P. Mabey, professor of history and political science who is a specialist in European and East European affairs.

Dr. Stanley A. Taylor was named co-ordinator of the International Relations program, replacing Dr. Ray C. Hillam who was recently appointed chairman of the Political Science Dept.

The new European Studies program will be interdisciplinary to provide students with a dual composite major or minor, including courses in the fields of political science, geography, economics, modern languages, literature, art and archaeology.

Dr. Taylor, new to BYU this year, received his B.S. degree from BYU in 1959, and his M.S. (1961), master of law and diplomacy (1962), and Ph.D. (1968) from Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy associated with Tufts and Harvard University in Boston.

Dr. Mabey, who graduated from BYU in 1947 and 1953 with B.S. and D.B.A. degrees, was a specialist on Czechoslovakia. He there as a missionary until the Communists closed the mission in 1948. He has been back several times since, making a study of the Czech Communist Party. He received his Ph.D. from Oxford University (England) on a Fulbright Scholarship.

BYU is now one of two dozen universities granting bachelors degrees in international relations.

missionaries from European countries who wish to do additional work may also take the course.

A requisite for the program is that the students know a major European language, either by actual experience of being in the country or by college language training.

Courses will be taught by professors in the various disciplines of history, political science, geography, economics, modern languages, literature, art and archaeology.

Low Rates For Those At BYU

In a recent national survey made by one of the nation's universities, BYU is reported to have the lowest on-campus boarding and housing rates in the comparison.

The survey, which encompasses 50 of the nation's leading college campuses, shows that BYU's $745 annual rate is among the lowest in the nation.

The expenses at Colorado State University are $942 per year, as compared to the Arizona schools' $886 yearly rate. University of New Mexico has a housing rate of $858 per year. And the University of Utah has a $790 rate.

Some of the other schools are: Stanford University, $1140; University of Michigan, $1000; USC $1100; UCLA $984 and the University of Minnesota, $950. Some of the reasons for the lower rate at BYU are that the cost of construction and workers salaries are not as high as they are in the other parts of the nation. Secondly, the housing program at this university is not concerned with making a profit, as are some other universities.

"All BYU housing is concerned with is breaking even," said Jones.

NINE SEMESTER HOURS OF HOME STUDY CREDIT MADE A BIG DIFFERENCE FOR RONALD C. HARWARD. HE'S TEACHING SEMINARY A YEAR AHEAD OF SCHEDULE

If you are anxious to graduate, you may have a decision to make. Ronald Harward did... to spend an extra semester on campus picking up a few classes or to graduate early and go to work.

If time and money are important to you, investigate the possibilities of early graduation with Home Study courses. Designed especially for you, Home Study is a University department offering credit courses through correspondence study. During day or evening hours, on weekends or vacation breaks... study when and where you wish.

With more than 4,000 students currently enrolled, records indicate that Home Study students do as well as classroom students.

The cost to you is less when you consider the expenses of spending more time on campus (tuition, general living expenses, loss of income from a full-time job, etc.)

NO, YOU DON'T

... says a Houston Cougar, as BYU basketballer, Doug Howard, tries to shoot over his head during the battle of the Cougars in San Francisco's Cable Car Classic over the weekend. The Texas Cougars mauled BYU, 98-75.

Holiday Jousts Slated

By Wally Rugg
Universe Sportswriter

With many students on their way home this weekend, the Cougar cagers will try to brighten Coach Stan Watts' Christmas season with three victories in the friendly confines of the Smith Fieldhouse.

The Cats, impressive in home court wins over Southern California and Seattle, have been slightly worse than miserable in dropping all three games away from Provo.

As a result, those fans and students still at school may see some changes in the line-up this weekend, as the Cougars host Oregon State on Friday, Denver on Saturday and Syracuse on Monday.

BYU had several opportunities to break the San Francisco game wide open, but were unable to generate one of the patented scoring rallies for which they have become famous at home. For those who don't know, San Francisco prevailed, 79-75.

In Saturday night's contest for third place against the tall and talented Cougars of Houston, BYU will use the rebound battle but will only score 35 per cent of their shots and lose the war, 98-75.

After five games the Cougars are hitting only 41 per cent from the field, well below the average shot by Stan Watts' charges in recent years.

The biggest disappointment of the young season has been the impotency of forwards Kari Limo and Marty Lythgoe, shooting 38 and 24 per cent respectively. They are averaging 19.8 points per game between them, when some thought they would be scoring that many points.

LeRoy Maughan, a 6'7 1/2" sophomore from Sandy, may see plenty of action this weekend in an attempt to remedy the situation along the forward line. Maughan looked strong in coming off the bench to score seven quick points in the fading minutes of the Houston game. He also hauled down three rebounds.

Centra Pay Ruffner came through in the Cable Car Classic still leading the Cats in scoring and rebounding—17 points per game and 10 rebounds per contest.

Even if the Pumas win all three upcoming home games, still the big question remains—can the Cougars win away from the Smith Fieldhouse?

If they are to collect any of the goodies in the tough WAC race this year, it will be necessary for them to develop a winning road formula soon.

Varied Personalities Reflected

By Jim Dangerfield
Universe Sportswriter

Every fieldhouse should have at least one.

A variety of personalities is reflected in the responses of the basketball-game-goer. The first, which is most common, is the shy timid one who sits in the middle, three rows up. He just sits with no emotion and occasionally claps at the half-time entertainment.

Sometimes this well-mannered b-ball enthusiast is joined with a tumultuous crowd, but only so he can see, and sometimes he even whistles but only so he can stop the popcorn boy.

This introduces the second type, the two-fisted-concession gobblers. He comes to the game with a full wallet and a not-so-full stomach. He attends a game with only one purpose in mind—to see how many hotdogs, hamburgers, assorted drinks and other perishable items he can consume.

He always sits in the middle so that in the most exciting part of the game he causes a bucket brigade for his ravenous appetite. He leaves the game with nothing more than a full stomach and an empty wallet for his six hours of waiting.

The third type of spectator can be the most damaging to the reputation of the school and both teams. The iron-junged all around sports experts are found in nearly every basketball fieldhouse and come in many forms, ranging from over-zealous townspersons to deriding teeny-boppers.

They are easily spotted because of their irresistible urge to stand and shake their fists at coaches, players and officials.

This species of spectator usually has 20-20 vision, four sets of eyes, an irrefutable knowledge of the NCAA rule book (from cover to cover) and especially a loud boozing voice.

These reliable old standbys not only keep the spirit of the game going strong, but they also keep the inexperienced and nearsighted referred in line.

The last type can be considered as an unusual breed of observer. He is quiet when the prayer is given and is considerate to his neighbors. He cheers loud and long for his team and never boos.

Does have a fair knowledge of the game, so he can tell his girl friend what is going on. Strangest of all, he applauds when any player turns in a good performance, even if he is on the opposing team. Although rare, this species of fan is by far the best.

Athletics

by Roger Gillespie
Sports Editor

ASBYU Vice President of Athletics, is a busy fellow. To expecting a baby soon (his wife that is) and trying to academic scholarship, Don is in charge of one of the most departments in Student Government. Inclusion is one of Don's responsibilities and probably the ones he has the most headaches. "I get calls in the middle of guys complaining about the way tickets are distributed," Don "and quite frankly, most of them don't understand it at all."

Tickets are not the problem they were during the days of the Stadium. Student allotment for football is 12,000 and this is under normal circumstances. It is at basketball games the misunderstanding takes place. "You know," mused only a few games last year were all the student tickets prior to game time." The student body, for those who don't know, sell 3500 basketball tickets are distributed on a first come basis.

Looked all over the country at methods of distribution and the most equitable," Don added. "At most schools the either sold outright to the students or the athletic controls them and the students are never sure what they are for this reason we have tried to make our method as fair as concluded.

aren't Don's only concern. He heads the pep department and is an area of no small consequence. In addition to the flag twirlers and yell leaders, the Cougarettes and the all come ultimately under the direction of the Athletics group all do an outstanding job of promoting school spirited the Athletic's V.P. "and I'm sure people would be e long hours they spend to do the job expected of them."

ettes were in San Francisco last weekend and participated in the Car Classic with the basketball team. One of the observers in charge of arranging half-time shows for the professional Francisco Forty-Niners, and he commented that "The were the "best marching group I have ever seen."

During the week are also spent by Don and his staff the student body on administrative councils. In addition to council and the committee in charge of the new sports also sits in on committees concerned with publicity and extramural sports.

Only the biggest responsibility Don has could be classified as "d." "Perhaps the WAC queen contest could be classified as a laugh," Don, "I must have spent two weeks on the phone ing all the details of that little jewel," he sighed.

BYE BYE TOMMY?

Hudson, BYU's head football coach has had campus the past several days. Last week Hudson spent the week in Oklahoma recruiting for next year's Cougar grid he was there he took time to go by his old alma mater of Tulsa, to be interviewed by the faculty committee in finding a replacement for Glen Dobbs. The venerable Dobbs down as head football coach at that University.

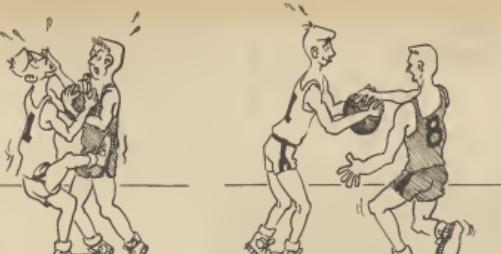

was reported in Monday's Universe and since that time has been high as to the possibility of BYU having to look for next year. When asked about the possibility of this, Hudson's terse reply was, "no comment."

ever, indicate during the course of our conversation that outstanding University and they have an excellent athletic mentioned to that it was nice to be back on a campus my warm memories were made and that it was good to be in my mother, brother and in-laws, all of whom live in the area.

He, who stepped down from the head coaching post to fill time to being athletic director, indicated to this writer decided to give up the head coaching post, Tommy was men I called to make him aware of the position." Dobbs saying that "Tommy is recognized as an outstanding sound football man, but more importantly, he is a fine Athletic director concluded our chat by confirming the Hudson is one of the select few who are definitely in the head coaching job at Tulsa University."

now that Tommy is interested in Tulsa and that Tulsa is Tommy. But whether anything ever comes of this is another matter...

It add by way of a post script that according to reports desk, there is apparently no truth to the rumor that just Pearce got an indoor tennis facility, Karl Tucker is going administration for an indoor golf course.

A JUMP BALL

... is called when the ball is held by two opponents so tightly that neither can get possession without undue roughness.

... is called for merely putting one's hand on the ball, for this does not constitute an equality of control.

NO JUMP BALL

or "jump" ball. Last year the rules committee issued a clarification emphasizing the correct calling of a held ball. The biggest problem, according to the committee, was the premature call which penalized both teams unfairly.

Fans, too, cheer for the home team and are sometimes extremely critical when a ruling of the officials goes against their own wishes. This conflict between spectators and officials usually leads to poor crowd behavior.

During a crucial part of a game, it is usually the mistake of an official—or at least what fans, players and coaches believe to be a mistake—that is remembered most.

But, as most will admit, it is unfair to criticize without foundation or support.

Most referees agree that fans, players and even coaches run into problems with the game because they do not know, understand, or interpret the rules correctly.

With this in mind, the DAILY UNIVERSE presents this series of articles hoping to curb any undue criticism by fans of the officials this year. For the next few weeks, some treatment of the rules will be presented in the hope that it will improve fan behavior at games and help fans to enjoy the games more.

Most officials agree today that one rule most frequently misunderstood is that of a "held ball" or "jump" ball.

The rule book states, "A held ball occurs when opponents have hands so firmly on the ball that control cannot be obtained without undue roughness..."

Under this rule no held ball will be called until the above condition has occurred. It is no longer sufficient to have one hand on the ball, or to be contesting for a jump ball to be called. For the official is instructed to allow one tag on the ball. If the ball does not come free a jump ball will be called.

If we understand how and when a jump ball is called, we should have any problem recognizing the situation as it occurs on the court.

Officials do an almost impossible job. They are responsible men. They study the rules almost constantly and receive instruction continually from their rules committee, as well as from their local associations. In the Western Athletic Conference, all officials are instructed at least once each year by the conference

commissioner and by John Bunn, writer of the official rule book.

CDFR Majors To Learn, Practice

By Janis Larson
University Staff Writer

Within a university environment, it is an exciting event to see an idea grow and develop into a practical, useful program.

Such is the case in the Department of Child Development and Family Research (CDFR). The energetic department, operating in the College of Family Living, is initiating a new experience called the "In-Service Training Program."

This is a program of giving and of receiving. It is a stand-guard in its field, and it is a program beneficial to the school, the community, and the student.

An in-service semester training in CDFR is eligible and is strongly encouraged to apply. Up to nine university credit hours can be earned during this block program. The applications, which may be picked up in 1239, Smith Family Living Center, must be turned in by Friday.

What the program actually involves is the placement of a selected group of students in various community agencies around the area. "The students will work therapeutically with individual children, groups of children and families of children served by the particular agency," said Sharon Thomas, the In-Service Training Program coordinator and an instructor in CDFR.

For one block of the semester, students will have an opportunity to work—and in some cases live—with those in the programs at the Primary Children's Hospital Youth Development Program, the Primary Children's Hospital Training School, the Utah State Training School, the Nebo District Remedial Center for Learning Disabilities, and lastly, the Nebo District Head Start Program.

Other than the children and their families, the In-Service students will have contact with a variety of trained personnel—pediatricians, psychiatric-social workers, speech therapists, and teachers.

This experience will put to use the theories and information

She feels such instruction will offer opportunities for service and helping develop skills with the handicapped or physically impaired child and his family."

Public Relations Club

Holds First Meeting

Formation of the BYU chapter of the Public Relations Students Society of America (PRSSA) got off to a start last Wednesday when over 20 persons attended the first official meeting of the chapter.

The PRSSA will be the only one in the western states, except for California, when it receives its charter.

The PRSSA is an official branch of PRSSA which is the organization to which most of the prominent people in the area of public relations belong. The BYU chapter's professional adviser is

Mr. David Bigler, who is the public relations district director for U.S. Steel. Dr. Rulon Bradley is the chapter's faculty adviser.

Some of the chapter's functions are to tell other campus groups about public relations and to help interested students with career guidance and to work with community leaders in public relations.

The second meeting of the chapter will be today in F-243 Harris Fine Arts Center at 4:10 p.m. All interested persons and members are welcome.

Man's Past Explained By Noted Scientist

By Janis Roaldseth

University Staff Writer

Evolution and the human race were topics elaborated on by noted British anthropologist D. L.S.B. Leakey, after he addressed BYU students last week.

Born of missionary parents in Kenya in 1903, he became interested in anthropology when he was still a boy after reading the book, "Days Before History." According to Dr. Leakey, it "fired him up" on the subject.

Even though he was told it was useless to try and find any remains in Africa, he persisted and discovered the "first man" in 1931. Although it was fragmented, it was dated at approximately 400,000 years ago.

The remains were a major breakthrough in anthropology, but were refuted as false by other archaeologists. This was in part due to the fact that the only other remains that had been found were located in Asia. Dr. Leakey also said that it was a case of prejudice.

Then in 1959, he unearthed the Zinjanthropus skull, nicknamed the nutcracker man. At first it was thought that he was a near-man because of the simultaneous finding of stone tools. However, it was later decided that he was a high form of primate.

Dr. Leakey said that the difference between even the highest form of primate and man is that man is an upright creature. He can be in a standing position and use his hands and can run on two legs, whereas the primate has to sit down to use his hands. The grip that the homo sapiens has (i.e., the way one holds a pen) made it possible for the development of the primate.

Other factors are our "computer brain," the ability to reason things out and also our bifocal vision. Humans can focus both eyes on an object and are consequently able to see objects better and more clearly.

The real turning point, though, was, according to Dr. Leakey, when man first learned to make fire for himself. The explanation behind it is that the men were not able to speak while hunting or the women while food-gathering. The only opportunity to "talk" to one another was at night.

Without the security of a fire to keep the dangerous beasts away, they were not able to speak; they had to listen. Once a fire was made, they could discuss the day's events and gradually developed words for ideas and were able to talk about abstract ideas, thus developing their brain in the process.

'Up With People' Forms At BYU

A new organization, "Up With People," is being formed in Provo for BYU and senior high school students. Their first meeting was last week.

"Sing Out Provo" will be part of a world-wide program to promote "heart-power." Their theme is their belief in people.

YOUTH STAND UP

"Up With People" began as a result of a conference in Mackinaw, Mich. After comments on the decaying youth of today, two students voiced their opinion that American youth weren't all as bad as the few that gave them the bad name.

One said that she felt it was time to speak out, to sing out about America. They formed a cast of 130 and began putting on shows across the nation and abroad. The enthusiasm spread like wildfire. Today, four years later, there are over four million youth around the world involved in it.

There are three full-time centers—A, B, and C—which have been the basis of the operation. A fourth unit, Force D, is a follow-up group which helps local Sing Out groups on request. This past weekend, two members of the Force D unit have been in Provo—Jan Brummer of Greenville, S.C., and Turid Rodsand of Oslo, Norway.

"Sing Out Provo" has plans for its first concert in February. The group's first rehearsal was Monday night at St. Francis High School. Anyone who wants to become part of this co-generation group is invited to join and sing out. Information can be obtained from Sergio Benaimo at 375-9088.

CHRISTMAS PLAY

When Bardsley, Jeannie Prows and Beth Stratton act out a scene today's performance of "Amahl and the Night Visitors."

YU's 'Amahl' Performs

and the Night Visitors" presented today at 8:15 p.m. at the Jong Concert Hall in the Fine Arts Center, a special Christmas opera, will be sung Thursday night. It comes to BYU at the talent of BYU's Bishop. A colorful light opera tells of the Three Wise Men's angle, the wise men's brother child, a poor boy named Amahl.

John Menotti, creator of the opera, has selected the story of

Amahl because in his native

Italy it is the Three Kings rather than Santa Claus who visit good children with candy and toys.

Directed by Brandt Curtis, Opera Workshop coordinator, "Amahl" is filled with a talented cast including Jeannie Prows as Amahl; Beth Stratton as his mother; Thomas Stosich, Walter Rudolph and Douglas Curran as kings; and Stephen Bardsley as the page.

Choreography for the production has been done by Sara Lee Gibbs with Karl Pope serving as set and lighting director.

Mormon Art

To Be Shown

The deadline for submitting responses to the Festival of Mormon Art exhibit during the month of April is Dec. 31.

No entry fee is required and the response forms can be obtained from the Art Dept.

Entries can be in any style—painting, sculpture, ceramic, mosaic or any other medium. Works submitted should express the artist's sincere conviction concerning the building of the Kingdom of God on earth.

Selection of articles will be made by the BYU art faculty. The program is designed to encourage more Latter-day Saint art and to encourage Church artists to speak out through their work.

Violinist Plays In Concert

BYU Symphony Concertmistress Cynthia Vance will be featured in recital Thursday at 7 p.m. in the Madson Recital Hall of the Harris Fine Arts Center.

A junior in applied music, Miss Vance will begin her program with "Præludium and Allegro" by the celebrated Viennese violinist Fritz Kreisler.

Two movements from Bach's "Sonata in A minor for Unaccompanied Violin" will be followed by six Rumanian Folk Dances by Bartók.

Béla Bartók is a contemporary Hungarian composer who has arranged many Eastern European folk songs and dances, the themes from which he also uses in his own compositions.

"Sonata in A Major" by Cesar

Franck will conclude the recital. This pro-French Impressionistic composer was an organist and prolific improviser. This particular composition is notably romantic. Miss Vance, a native of Provo, soloed with the BYU Symphony Orchestra in Las Vegas at the 1967 Western Division MENC Conference. She will be accompanied by Joanne L. Curran at the piano.

Snow-Seasoned Sports Soar

By Janet Thomas
University Staff Writer
Snow!

That wonderful white cold stuff that makes some people groan and some people grin. The latter group is composed of skiers, skaters and ski-doers.

Would you believe that 20 to 30 years ago you'd be hard up to find any lift lines? (Oh, joy.) For that matter, you'd be hard up for the hills.

In the past couple of decades snow sports have grown by leaps and (snow) bounds. Skis have evolved from barrel staves to multi-laminated, fiberglass, built-in-edged, expensive skis.

With the snow in the air, the season skips in, live breathe and sleep skiing, just ask. You'll get a discourse equal to the Congressional Record and probably just as interesting.

If you are in doubt as to where to find a ski-people, just look around you. They grow wild in Utah. You can spot them easily. They have numerous ski tags dangling from parks and talk about schussing and and a gabout lesgardening among themselves.

However, it is easy to be converted. Just buy, rent or borrow and head for the hills.

Music-Midday Program Today

An hour-long program of five selections is scheduled for today's Music at Midday.

The program will begin at noon in the Madsen Recital Hall with two vocal selections by baritone Karl Barton. He will sing "The Publican" by Van de Water and "Into the Night" by Clara Edwards. Following is "Vittorio mio core" by Carissimi and "Yarmouth Fair" by Warlock, both sung by Gordon White.

Terry Hill will next play two movements from a Handel concerto for two violins and will sing two vocal selections by Brahms and Mahler and the program will conclude with Linda Braithwaite's performance of Brahms' "Intermezzo, op. 117, no. 2," on the piano.
